New York Builder Picks Integrity® In A New York Minute

David Borenstein Architects/Builders is a small but diverse design/build firm located just north of New York City. Their "we do it all" philosophy is more than a slogan—it's a fact! From design and construction, to electrical work, to plumbing and landscaping, this firm has an enormous wealth of in-house expertise to offer its clients.

"We specialize in building homes that are site-integrated on lots that are difficult to develop, such as cliffs or hills," says firm founder David Borenstein. "Not only is it more interesting," he adds, "but with the housing market as hot as it is right now, that's what's available!"

Borenstein has been using Integrity Windows in the homes he designs and builds for over seven years. "Integrity Windows are the only windows I use," he explains. "They are priced to compete, they are very well-made, they look beautiful and they meet all U-values and energy codes. They've been great!"

In addition, the variety of sizes and mulling configurations available from Integrity provide Borenstein with a myriad of ways to capture the scenic views surrounding his homes, while maintaining a traditional style.

While Integrity is not always the brand of window that is foremost in his client's mind, Borenstein has found that once the benefits of Integrity are explained, clients are eager to choose a quality product that offers long-term benefits at a competitive price.

Integrity's Ultrax® exterior is one of the best selling points for Borenstein's clients. Although the surface can be painted, the maintenance-free nature and extreme durability of Integrity's pultruded fiberglass-based Ultrax exterior is perfect for the climate in the Northeast.

"Integrity Windows are the only windows I use...They are priced to compete, they are very well-made, they look beautiful and they meet all U-values and energy codes. They've been great!"
